

Only 1 Lives as Big Yacht Burns, Sinks

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — "It was dark, rough and squally. I saw a child floating in the water with a lifejacket. I pulled it into the lifeboat but the child was dead. I drifted with the body beside me until the tanker picked me up."

That was part of the story told Monday night by the only known survivor of seven Americans aboard a 60-foot yacht which caught fire and sank during a cruise of Bahamian waters.

The survivor, Capt. Julian Harvey, 44, skipper of the ketch Blue Belle, said the vessel went down about 50 miles northwest of Nassau late Sunday night.

After drifting for 14 hours with the body of a 10-year-old girl beside him, Harvey was picked up by the tanker Gulf Lyon and brought to Nassau. He was treated for exposure and shock.

Also aboard and believed lost when the Blue Belle went down were Mary Dene Harvey, 34, wife of the skipper; Arthur Dupersault, 40, of Green Bay, Wis., his wife and three children, including the girl and two boys aged 4 and 14.

The Blue Belle, owned by Harold S. Pegg of Hollywood, Fla., left Bahia Mar yacht basin in Fort Lauderdale Wednesday.

Harvey said the party left Sunday Point in the Bahamas about 5 p. m. Sunday to return to Fort Lauderdale.

Faubus Will Speak to City League

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — A speech by Gov. Orval E. Faubus highlights the final day of activities of the annual convention of the Arkansas Municipal League here today.

Monday's featured speaker, Mayor W. F. Laman of North Little Rock, told the municipal officials that they must urge the public to take a more active part in running city government.

"It has been said," he said, "that the people have lost control of their government to the politicians at city hall. If they have lost control, it is through their own apathy and not the fault of officials."

"The community can have the type of government it wants." People who don't understand projects will be against them, he said.

"On the other hand, if citizens are invited in on the early planning, we get more cooperation." The two-day conference opened Monday.

Repentant But Unknown Death Car Driver Thinks of Family Every Year

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Nineteen years Robbie Wilson, 6, got born. Edna's fourth birthday ran out to play on the street.

The driver of a passing automobile swerved but hit the child and killed him. The driver carried the boy into the house and collapsed.

A doctor treated Robbie's parents and the motorist for shock. Then the driver left. He didn't tell the Wilsons his name. They knew only that he lived in England, in the city of Sunderland.

A year later, on Edna's next birthday, a huge parcel arrived for the girl. It was a rocking horse. There was no sender's name. The only clue was the postmark: Sunderland.

On her sixth birthday, Edna got a child's bicycle. Again it came from Sunderland.

Each year since Edna has received an expensive birthday present from Sunderland. As she grew older the gifts became more sophisticated — a beauty set, French perfume, cosmetics.

When she became old enough to drive, money arrived to pay for driving lessons.

A beautiful evening gown was her 21st birthday gift.

A few weeks ago Edna married and went to live in an Edinburgh suburb. The family has no idea how the man in Sunderland found out, but he sent a wedding present.

The Wilson family still doesn't know who he is.

U. S. Deficit Overseas Now 3 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. deficit in international payments which has climbed to an annual rate of $3 billion may grow worse next spring before it gets better, government sources indicated today.

Administration officials do not expect anything like last year's speculative assault on the dollar, however, because measures already undertaken in its defense should by then be showing some results.

One major cause of the looming payments trouble, in fact, may be the rising prosperity of the United States, resulting in larger dollar outlays for imported goods and materials. This comes at a time when a business slowdown in Germany, England and Japan may cause their purchases here to decline.

The new balance of payments figures were issued Monday by the Commerce Department. They showed that U.S. payments abroad were nearly $800 million greater than its receipts from foreign countries in the third quarter of the year.

This represented an annual rate of deficit of slightly over $3 billion after seasonal adjustment, the department said. It was a rise of more than 50 per cent from the $1.9 billion rate in the April-June quarter.

The outflow of gold, which had been brought to a standstill early this year has resumed. It totaled about $145 million in the July-September quarter, thus offsetting a rise in holdings of about the same amount in June.

This gold loss was small by comparison with the outflow in 1959 and 1960, and officials said the country is in much better shape to prevent the flow from reaching serious proportions.

Education Drive Urged Upon U. S. A.

By G. K. HODENFIELD
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The United States was urged today to inaugurate "bold, imaginative, massive and costly" programs of international education, conceived along a broad front and involving tens of thousands of persons.

Pive university officials said such programs on behalf of foreign students and foreign universities "will most probably bring greater results per dollar of expenditure than some of our direct aid programs."

A study group headed by Dr. Harry R. Wellman, vice president of the University of California, outlined its conclusions in a report to the annual meeting of the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities.

"The need is urgent," the report said, "to understand more about the emerging nations, not as potential allies or enemies in some war that should not happen, but as potential markets, as sources of raw materials and, above all, as groups of human individuals who have interest and challenge in their own right."

The report noted that "the leaders of the smaller and poorer emerging nations will for some time be educated abroad. It is important that as many as possible be educated in the United States."

The group also warned: "We will err grievously if we continue to rely on foreign educational activity in terms of transplanting American political ideology."

Reform of State Topic for Debate

By JOHN R. STARR
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — "Resolved That Arkansas Is Politically Corrupt."

It's an interesting topic and two interesting political figures will debate it here Thursday night.

Taking the affirmative is Ouchita County Rep. David Pryor, a 27-year-old former newspaperman serving his first term in the legislature.

On the negative side is Perry County Rep. Van Dalsem, a 53-year-old former newspaper publisher who has been in the legislature most of the time since 1936.

The debate, to be staged by the Legislative Committee of the Arkansas Association of University Women, will climax Pryor's speaking tour of the state. He has pleaded vigorously for government reform and a new constitution.

Van Dalsem, who stood silent during Pryor's early round of speeches, has been openly critical of his youthful colleague in recent months. His frequent press conference answers in points raised by Pryor from the speaking platform led the AAUW to set the debate.

To the casual observer, it might appear as if the AAUW, which approves of Pryor, overmatched their boy. Van Dalsem is a veteran of catch-as-catch-can legislative debate. He revels in hammering away at speaking opponents, using the fist-shaking, arm-waving tactics of the old-time stump speaker.

Pryor, however, is an accomplished orator of the smooth school. He speaks slowly, with few gestures, but his words are well-chosen and he has a wide range of tonal emphasis.

Van Dalsem, on the other hand, has indicated he feels he may be walking into a lion's den. The AAUW has no warm feeling for him and he has feuded frequently with the Arkansas Education Association in whose hall the debate will be held.

Politics has been Van Dalsem's principal occupation all his life. He earns a living farming near Perryville, but he spends most of his time on one governmental duty or another. He is one of Gov. Orval E. Faubus' legislative leaders, a powerful member of the Legislature.

Macapagal Leads in P. I. Voting

By HENRY HARTZENBUSCH
MANILA, Wednesday (AP) — Vice President Diosdado Macapagal took an early and expected lead today over President Carlos P. Garcia in first returns from the Philippines general election.

With about 2 per cent of the vote counted, Macapagal, of the Liberal party, had 104,561 votes to 74,301 for Garcia, leader of the Nacionalista party. The count was unofficial and too small to establish a trend from Monday's balloting.

In the vice presidential race, Emmanuel Palanca, Macapagal's running mate and a close associate of the late and popular President Ramon Magsaysay, took a slim lead over Rep. Sergio Osmena Jr., of 322 votes. Osmena, son of the late president running as an independent, had 75,008. Sen. Gil Puyat, Garcia's running mate, was way back with 28,503.

Macapagal got his early lead from traditionally anti-administration Manila. However, early returns from generally pro-Garcia areas in the central Philippines showed some districts going over the Macapagal.

Election day was the most peaceful presidential balloting of the islands' 15-year history as a republic.

Saxon Gets Comptroller Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy named James J. Saxon of Wilmette, Ill., today to be comptroller of the currency succeeding Ray M. Gidney who has been at odds with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy over bank mergers.

Kennedy gave Saxon a recess appointment. This means his name will have to be submitted to the Senate for confirmation in January.

Gidney has submitted his resignation to be effective Wednesday.

Kennedy sent Saxon's name to the Senate for confirmation Sept. 20 but withdrew it in a matter of hours.

The Treasury explained that Saxon's name had been sent to the White House as a result of a clerical error. Gidney said at that time he had not resigned, but the upshot was that he agreed to quit effective Nov. 15.

New Draft for 345 Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department issued a call today for drafting 345 more doctors.

Murderer to Gas Chamber in California

By HAROLD V. STREETER
SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — A much-married roustabout who raped a 6-year-old girl and then killed her, with the help of his pregnant wife, faced death today in the gas chamber.

Richard Arlen Lindsey, 30, an ex-convict, was scheduled to die today for the Jan. 12 death of Rose Marie Riddle, who suffered a congenital heart ailment.

Lindsey's common-law wife, Dixie Elaine, 23, gave birth to a son two months after the crime. She is serving two life terms for kidnapping Rose Marie with a tire iron after Lindsey raped and choked the child.

Lindsey and his 208-pound wife abducted Rose Marie from a labor camp at Shafter. Rose Marie's father, Everett, had brought his wife and two daughters there from Chandler, Ariz., so he could work as a farm migrant.

The Lindseys drove to a remote field where Lindsey raped the girl in the back seat. Then he choked her. But he wasn't sure she was dead.

"If you don't do it, I will," Mrs. Lindsey said. She grabbed a fire iron and struck the girl 19 times.

The couple dumped the body on a desolate alkali flat, drove to San Francisco and stayed drunk in a cheap hotel for two days.

Three days after the crime, the Lindseys were captured asleep in their blood-stained car across the bay from San Francisco.

Lindsey pleaded guilty Jan. 20. On March 22, Mrs. Lindsey, was removed from jail to a hospital where she gave birth to a 6-pound, 3-ounce boy, later given in custody to her mother.

Lindsey and Dixie Elaine first were married several years ago. Then, after each had other spouses — Lindsey four — they got back together a year before Rose Marie's murder.

Reminders of Stalin 'Out' in E. Berlin

By GENE KRAMER
BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany staged a blitz de-Stalinization during the night, renaming East Berlin's showplace boulevard and removing its statue of Stalin and countless other memorials to the late Soviet dictator.

This morning only workmen and debris remained as bulldozers cleared the square where East Berlin's bronze Stalin statue had stood since shortly after World War II.

Stalinallee, the broad, three-mile avenue that is East Berlin's main street, had fresh name signs — Karl Marx Allee — for half its length and Frankfurter Allee for the rest. Frankfurter Allee was the street's name before the Russians occupied East Berlin.

Stalinskiad, a major East German iron and steel town on the Oder River, was renamed Eisenhuettenstadt, or iron foundry town, according to a small front-page announcement in Neues Deutschland, organ of the East German Communist party.

The important Josef W. Stalin plant in Berlin Treptow was renamed "Electrical Apparatus."

Men at Lonely Station in Antarctica Go on an Odd Binge — of Fresh Eggs

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer
SOUTH POLE STATION, Antarctica (AP) — The men at America's coldest and most remote scientific station at the bottom of the world went on a midnight binge last Thursday night — on fresh eggs.

The occasion was the arrival of the first relief contingent for the 20 scientists and U.S. Navy men who wintered at this lonely outpost buried under up to eight feet of drifted snow. With them came the first fresh eggs and milk the South Pole group had seen in almost nine months of isolation from the outside world.

The celebration got under way right after the nightly movie. Within an hour, 15 men had tucked away more than 100 eggs in the warmth of a galley where the temperature above the snow-covered roof stood at 45 degrees below zero.

"I ate eight eggs myself," C. D. McKenny of Phoenix, Ariz., a meteorology technician, said grinning. "I had two poached, two boiled and the rest fried."

The relief contingent of sailors and Seabees, and three crates of eggs and 10 gallons of milk, came on a Navy cargo plane from the McMurdo station some 800 miles away.

On another plane were a group of New Zealand government officials and nine newsmen.

The two planes were only the fourth and fifth aircraft to land here since the beginning of the "summer season," one on Oct. 30, another the first fresh oranges, apples, lettuce, potatoes and radishes the men had seen since Feb. 17, when the South Pole station buttoned down for the antarctic winter. But the men still yearned for summer.

Cold Strikes in Southwest From Rockies

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Snow driven by blustery north winds blanketed a large area of the Southwest today, reaching depths of up to three feet in the southern Rockies. Temperatures were mostly in the 20s and 30s.

The heaviest snowfall reported was 36 inches in the Sacramento Mountains southeast of Alamogordo, N.M. The snow area extended into Arizona, Colorado, Utah and Texas.

Heavy drifts hampered rescuers searching for three hunters, missing since Monday night in south-western New Mexico in the rugged Tularosa Mountains.

Torrential rains drenched parts of Texas and Louisiana as a storm front extending as far north as Pennsylvania moved eastward. Light rain, drizzle and fog were reported over most of the nation's eastern third.

Most of the fog was in New England where temperatures were in the 40s and 50s. It was warmer to the south, where nighttime readings ranged into the 70s.

South Africa Lashed, But Stays in UN

By TOM HOGE
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — South Africa today had weathered twin moves to expel her from the United Nations and place her under a worldwide political-economic boycott. But her while supremacy policies were condemned by a resounding 72-2 vote.

The 103-nation special political committee voted 47-32 Monday for the demand by 30 Asian-African nations and Cuba to get the Security Council to consider ousting South Africa from the United Nations. The vote fell short of the two-thirds majority required for approval by the General Assembly.

The same fate befell the boycott call by the 31 sponsors. It was approved by the slim margin of 48-30.

The censure resolution by India and seven other nations denounced South Africa's apartheid policy of strict race segregation and asked member nations to take whatever action they deemed fit, individually or collectively.

Only Portugal and South Africa voted against it, but there were 27 abstentions, including the United States, Britain and France.

The denunciation of apartheid was similar to a resolution approved by the assembly last year after a boycott proposal failed to get a two-thirds majority.

This time the committee backed on three amendments which, since they did not get two-thirds majorities, probably will not clear the assembly. The Western powers had announced they would abstain in the vote on the resolution if the amendments were approved.

One, by Ethiopia, asked the Security Council to consider what steps should be taken against South Africa. Another, by the Soviet Union, calls for an embargo on arms to South Africa, and a Pakistani amendment calls for an oil embargo.

The vote came after three weeks of stormy debate during which South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw contended that the expulsion of his country would be "the beginning of the end" of the United Nations.

191 Names on Nine Petitions Filed Today

Nine petitions with a total of 191 signatures nominating Herbert M. Stephens for the county-at-large member of the County Board of Education were filed at the courthouse today by Attorney James H. Milkinson, attorney for Hope, Star and Alex. H. Washburn, editor.

The total of signatures was nearly four times the required 50, and filing was a day ahead of the deadline, Wednesday, Nov. 15, which is the required 20 days before the election Dec. 5.

Mr. Stephens is committed to abolishing the office of County School Supervisor, and, if elected, will make the second member of the five-man County Board of Education to be so pledged, the other one being Ralph Lehman, who was elected from the Hope School District Zone in 1959.

As explained in a Star editorial yesterday four of the five memberships on the County Board of Education are zoned. The only county-at-large post is held by Milton Peebles, Saratoga school superintendent, whose term is expiring this year, and against whom the Stephens nomination has been made by the petition campaign just completed.

Prior to the petition campaign Mr. Peebles was asked to commit himself to abolishing the County School Supervisor office, but declined to do so.

Only in the 1959 school election and the upcoming one of Dec. 5 this year do the great mass of Hempstead county voters have any voice in electing members to the County Board. All county electors may vote Dec. 5, since the post is county-at-large. And Hope, with more than a third of the county's population, was able to vote in 1959 because the zone was that of the Hope School District.

But the other three posts are nominated and elected from the individual rural districts of Spring Hill, Washington and Blewett — with no other county electors voting except the single district of the individual zone.

Mrs. Effie Nora Jones Dies at 78

Mrs. Effie Nora Jones, 78, mother of Managing Editor Paul H. Jones of Hope Star, died at 9 a. m. PCT (11 a. m. Hope time) today at the home of a daughter, Paul's twin sister, Mrs. Pauline Hunt, 15474 Pine St., Fontana, Calif.

Mrs. Jones, formerly of Hope, had lived in California for 17 years. She suffered a heart attack in October, and Paul was called to her bedside, Monday, Oct. 30, remaining there for the last two weeks. Information in today's telephone call from California said Mr. Jones had just left for the trip home when his mother died.

Mrs. Jones is survived by five sons: Carl B. and Paul H. Jones of Hope W. E. Jones, Nick Jones and G. E. Jones all of California; three daughters, Mrs. Pauline Hunt of Fontana, Calif.; Mrs. Lena Steed of Baldwin Park, Calif.; and Mrs. Carmen Horton of Murray, Ky.

Court Holds Will for Woman Good

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court has upheld the will of Pink Jones of Widener who died in 1959, leaving his estate to a woman he referred to as his wife but whom he never married.

The unanimous decision, written by Justice Paul Ward, affirmed St. Francis County Probate Judge J. Ford Smith who approved the will leaving Jones' estate to Mrs. Lenora Jones.

Four brothers of Jones contested the will. They admitted that the recipient had lived with Jones since 1932 and had adopted his name.

Ward wrote that the decedent's intent must be determined from the will.

He concluded that Jones intended to leave the property to the woman he called "my wife, Lenora Jones."

Size of the estate was not indicated by Supreme Court records.

Africa to Prohibit Bombs There

By MAX HARRELSON
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The main U.N. political committee today brushed aside opposition of the Western nuclear powers and called for recognition of Africa as a denuclearized zone.

The vote on the African-sponsored resolution was 57-0 with 42 abstaining.

It not only called for a halt to all nuclear weapons testing in Africa, but urged all countries to refrain from transporting or storing hydrogen or atomic bombs on African territory.

The United States and France voted against two key provisions of the resolution in paragraph-by-paragraph voting, but on the resolution as a whole they abstained along with Britain, a substantial number of Western European countries and some Latin-American delegates.

The Soviet bloc voted with the majority for the resolution.

The Western powers objected to having such restrictions voted for only one part of the world. The move hit directly at France which has a nuclear testing base in the Sahara.

Kid Brother Killed by Deer Rifle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A 10-year-old boy was accidentally shot to death Monday night by an older brother, who was cleaning a rifle in preparation for a deer hunt today, the second day of the regular season.

Two other persons were wounded in hunting accidents as the season opened Monday.

Another hunter died of a heart attack in a deer camp.

Heisel Wayne Schultz was killed instantly when a rifle discharged while his brother, Eddie, 15, cleaned it. The accident occurred at their home near El Paso, about 20 miles southwest of Sealey.

Bobby Johnson, 23, of Route 1, Monette, was wounded in the left hand by a charge from his shotgun near Paragould.

Johnson said he put out his left hand to push aside some brush as he walked to a deer stand. The shotgun discharged accidentally. A hunting companion applied a tourniquet, and Johnson went to a Paragould hospital.

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — Sheriff Jack Price said today that Herschel Wayne Schultz, 10, was accidentally shot to death Monday night at his home near El Paso, 20 miles southwest of here.

Price said the youngster was fatally wounded when a high powered deer rifle being cleaned by his brother, Eddie, 15, accidentally discharged.

The older boy had planned to go deer hunting today.

Herschel was struck in the neck. He died instantly of a severed jugular vein.

Coroner Henry Plant ruled the death an accident.

Young Schultz was the son of Mrs. Vanetta McGinty.

Korean Opens Talks With Kennedy

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Gen. Chung Hee Park, leader of the military junta that seized power in South Korea, opens his talks with President Kennedy today with a request for strong U.S. economic support and additional military aid.

U.S. officials said Kennedy will pledge American aid in principle, and approve a plan to modernize South Korea's 600,000-man armed forces.

The groundwork for Park's meeting with Kennedy will be laid when Park confers with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Fowler Hamilton, U.S. aid administrator.

The general then meets Kennedy for the first time at a small White House lunch. Afterward, the two will talk alone through an interpreter in the President's office.

Park came to prominence last May when he and a group of fellow officers overthrew the elected government.

At first, the United States was cool to the revolutionary junta but gradually gave it increasing support as the junta attacked graft and corruption in government and undertook a series of social reforms.

Park was met late Monday with a red carpet welcome, complete with a 19-gun salute and full military honors at National Airport.

In welcoming him, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said: "In the next two days President Kennedy and members of his administration will discuss with you how we in America can assist in the fulfillment of plans for the greater well-being and prosperity of the Korean people."

Park replied: "This visit affords us an unparalleled opportunity to discuss our mutual problems. We shall repay the United States and other free world allies for their support and assistance by reconstructing our nation. Doing this will enable us to fulfill our responsibilities more effectively as a member of the free world."

ABC of Fallout —

The Types of Fallout

STRATOSPHERIC FALLOUT

Can take years to fall to earth through interaction of air currents. If high enough, the fallout could spread over the entire world.

TROPOSPHERIC FALLOUT

Radioactive particles in this region where weather is formed fall in matter of weeks, brought down mostly along with rain and snow.

LOCAL FALLOUT

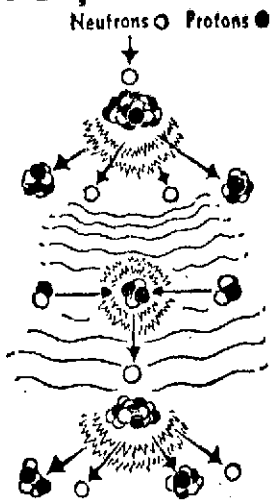

Formed of matter scooped up by bomb's fireball; is most dangerous type, but extends only a few hundred miles, settles within hours.

The lower a blast occurs, the more material it scoops up from the earth and drops as local and tropospheric fallout. Higher and more powerful bombs send more particles into the stratosphere, where they linger, lose much potency.

Everyone takes for granted the almost unbelievable blast and heat unleashed by a nuclear bomb. What worries the world today are the uncertain — thus, more terrifying — effects of a nuclear bomb's by-products: radioactive particles, or fallout. Ordinary people have reason to be confused, for even scientists dispute over the dangers of fallout and on the value of shelters. Charts above illustrate how fallout is formed, what happens to it and list some of its characteristics. As for its effects on the human race, our grandchildren will perhaps answer that question. Little fallout from the current Russian tests has yet settled to earth; the great bulk

Three Stages of Superbomb

1. FISSION—Neutrons emitted by uranium-235 split other U-235 atoms (ordinary A-bomb). Reaction produces free neutrons and great heat.
2. FUSION—The heat fuses two types of hydrogen, creating the H-bomb explosion with blast, heat and more high-speed neutrons.
3. FISSION—Neutrons strike casing made of uranium-238, splitting it into radioactive units.

Effects of Fallout

LETHAL BURNS can be caused by shower of radioactive particles close to explosion area.

INTERNAL effects are caused by breathing in particles and ingesting them with affected food.

LONG-TERM effects of internal radiation may include damage to blood-producing and disease-resisting machinery of body, and altering of the reproductive cells.

"Dirtiness" of a hydrogen bomb is caused by its uranium trigger and outer casing (diagram, left). • Long-lasting fallout threat is contamination of food for men and animals.

The Most Dangerous Fallout Particles

Most serious of fallout products, has half-life of about 27 years (that is, in 27 years it has lost half its radioactivity). Is easily absorbed into bones of children; can cause bone cancer or leukemia.

STRONTIUM-90

Similar half-life to strontium-90, it lodges in muscles and tissues of body; threatens genetic harm.

CESIUM-137

Collects in thyroid gland, but has short half-life of only eight days.

IODINE-131

Long half-life; it could be particularly inimical to process of heredity, cause defective births.

CARBON-14

Strontium-89, barium-140, zirconium-95 are among the many others. Most have short half-lives, but would be dangerous in nuclear war, to both the living and unborn.

In all, some 200 different radioactive isotopes (radioactive forms of ordinary elements) are created by a hydrogen bomb blast. Fortunately, most decay rapidly. Those which don't, however, pose a serious danger to mankind. Authorities are not agreed just where impermissible levels begin. Some argue any amount of radioactivity is potentially dangerous.

of it will appear with next spring's rains. But local fallout from Russia's current series of tests undoubtedly has affected the U. S. S. R. The U. S. Weather Bureau says that anyone living within 100 miles downwind of the 58 megaton-plus superbomb would have received 100 reentgens (a measure of radiation; 400 is fatal to everyone), which would have caused "mild sickness." The Atomic Energy Commission estimates that the Soviets' big bomb was detonated at about 12,000 feet and had a fireball nearly five miles in diameter.

2 Men Hold the Fate of Legislation

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two men, other than the speaker and majority leader may decide the fate of major legislation in the House in the session starting Jan. 10. They are Howard W. Smith, Virginia Democrat who heads the announcement Sunday in closing a two-day conference.

The premiers made no comment on the Soviet request for mutual defense talks with the Finnish government.

Rules Committee, and Charles A. Halleck, Indiana Republican who leads the minority.

For years Smith and Halleck have teamed up to head a conservative coalition that at times has dominated the House despite its nominal control by Democrats.

The Northern Republican-Southern Democrat coalition's chief stumbling block in the past has been Sam Rayburn, who was able on occasion to win over enough Southerners to save coalition-opposed legislation. Rayburn's success was attributed primarily to his personal popularity with his Southern colleagues.

The 79-year-old speaker is ill with cancer in a Bonham, Tex., hospital and not even his most optimistic friends expect him to return to Washington.

It is generally assumed that Rayburn will be succeeded as speaker by John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, now the Democratic leader, and that McCormack's leadership post will go to Carl Albert of Oklahoma, now the Democratic whip, or assistant leader.

Neither McCormack nor Albert has demonstrated the ability to crack the usually solid Southern lines as Rayburn did on occasion.

On at least three major issues during the 1961 session of Congress, Rayburn was credited with having saved the day for the liberals by personal appeals to some Southern Democrats.

Even some of the more optimistic liberals in the House concede privately that the 1962 session will be a bad one as far as expenditures of public money.

Claims $15,000 Cattle Tax Loss

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Charles E. Oates, a Texarkana dentist, testified in U.S. Tax Court today that he lost $15,000 in a cattle venture over a period of years. The testimony was to support Oates' case in a battle against a $1,546 tax deficiency assessed against him by the Internal Revenue Service.

Judge William H. Fay is presiding over the three-day Tax Court session.

The Kennedy legislative program is concerned. They see serious trouble ahead for legislation dealing with tariffs, school aid, medical care for the aged, foreign aid and any program involving heavy expenditures of public money.

Rayburn Rallies in Cancer Fight

BONHAM, Tex. (AP) — Sam Rayburn is fighting a valiant battle against cancer and the hours or days his doctors gave him to live are stretching on.

Last Saturday, Dr. Joe A. Risser said it would be only a matter of hours or days for the 79-year-old speaker of the house. Then Rayburn was a bit better Sunday.

Monday he was a little worse.

So it goes. He improves somewhat, then slips. The net is a loss that shows up in such terms as "less alertness," and "difficulty in breathing."

For days every medical bulletin has called Rayburn's condition critical.

Red Fishing Fleet Poses Real Issue

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's growing and far-ranging fishing fleet poses an "overt challenge to our defenses," says a semi-official publication on naval affairs.

An article in the November issue of "United States Naval Institute Proceedings" also contends the Soviet fishing fleet is an economic threat to Western nations by cutting down on the amount of fish the Soviet Union imports from them.

These are the views of Bernard M. Kassell, a retired U.S. Navy commander who reads Russian and told a reporter he gets much information by studying Soviet publications.

The "Proceedings" is the publication of the United States Naval Institute, an organization of Navy Coast Guard and Marine officers. Its headquarters are on the campus of the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

Although the publication disclaims any official connection, it prints articles only after they have been approved by a board of control headed by Adm. George W. Anderson, chief of naval operations.

Kassell's article appeared a few days after a stir was caused by the appearance of a large fleet of Soviet trawlers and other fishing vessels in international waters off the Massachusetts coast.

"Reports from sources in the West, including those attributed to the U.S. Navy, indicate that there are from 200 to 400 such ships always at sea in strategic areas," the article said.

DOROTHY DIX

Her Past Prelude to Her Present

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am a desperate mother badly in need of help. Three times, with provocation, I hit my two little girls and hurt them badly. Some day I fear I may kill them even though loving them as my own life.

Periodically, these uncontrollable fits of anger overtake me. From a normal, well-adjusted human being I suddenly change into a wild woman bearing no resemblance to the real me. After such fits of rage I want to cut off my arms, I am so wretched, but while these spells last they are terrifying.

At these times, I feel that my dead father has taken possession of me. He was insanely cruel, beating my brother and me without provocation. Afraid for my life I ran away at 16, was brought back and given treatment at a child guidance clinic.

Eventually I married a man who truly loves me and I him. We adore our children and, save for my unpredictable rages, our home life is extremely happy. How can I cast out the devil that is my father in me? Psychiatric treatment is impossible on our budget. —Miserable Child - Beater, Spanaway, Wash.

Dear Miserable: At least you recognize the danger of these ungovernable rages. That is the first step to recovery. They are a symptom not a cause. While your trouble may be psychiatric, it may also be physical. Many doctors believe that dietary deficiencies or glandular disturbances cause conditions such as yours.

Start out by seeing your family doctor and let him decide what treatments should be tried. If you are unable to afford the treatments from private specialists, he can direct you to clinics and other places where you can get treatment within your means.

Dear Helen: I am 16 and have been going steady a year and a

to help the Leopoldville government's army end Katanga's 16-month-old defiance of the central government.

Western sources said the United States and Britain feel Katanga must be brought back into the fold by peaceful means only.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia cabled U.N. headquarters Nov. 1 that the council must act decisively "to ensure the integration of Katanga into the Congolese nation." Two days later Ethiopia, Sudan and Nigeria asked for a council meeting to consider the situation "caused by the lawless acts of mercenaries" officering the Katanga army and air force.

Western sources said the United States and Britain had been talking with other delegations about a council resolution that would:

1. Affirm the territorial unity of the Congo, including Katanga.
2. Welcome the establishment last Aug. 2 of Premier Cyrille Adoula's central coalition government.
3. Express hope for an end to Katanga's secession by negotiation.
4. Call again for the ouster of foreign mercenaries from Katanga.
5. Declare that no arms should go to the Congo except through the United Nations.
6. Make some reference to acting Secretary-General U Thant that would have the effect of transferring to the Congo mandate given the late Dag Hammarskjöld.

Labor Can Halt Reds, Says Pope

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A high Vatican official said here Saturday that Communist inroads can be stopped by a strong labor movement led by the people.

Archbishop Epifanio Vagnozzi, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States, told a news conference that Utopian promises of a better life have helped the Communist cause.

This, he said, could be offset by a labor movement led by people interested in the working class.

The archbishop said some Catholics vote for the Communist Party because it helps them more than other parties.

"But still, Catholics go to church," he said.

Dear Wholesome: Share your boy friend's hobbies. If you don't know what they are, find out. Flatter him by acquiring the same hobby. Maybe it's rock 'n' roll records. Wife Pleads Innocent in Death Mate

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will propose this week that the 20 nations of the Atlantic Community increase their combined economic output 50 per cent by 1970, U. S. officials said today.

George W. Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state for economic affairs, will present the proposal at the conference of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris Thursday and Friday.

The organization has three declared aims: to work in the interest of achieving the highest possible economic growth, to assist less-developed areas of the world with capital investments, and to expand world trade.

The United States believes, officials said, that with the economic recovery of Western Europe completed and with the free convertibility of Western European currencies generally achieved, it is time to set a new goal. It would raise the present combined gross national product of the 20-nation body from about $900 billion a year to $1.35 trillion within nine years.

The annual gross national product of the United States would increase from $520 billion in 1961 to $780 billion by 1970 if the goal is reached.

The gross national product is a measure of a country's output of goods and services.

A top-ranking diplomat said adoption of the U.S. proposal—plus what he called necessary changes in domestic economic policies—would show that Western nations recognize their economy must grow if it is to survive.

Dead Still Not Known in Air Crash

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Medical authorities hope to have new evidence today that will help to complete identification of the 77 victims of the crash of a flaming airliner carrying Army recruits.

Doctors at the Medical College of Virginia so far have identified 35 bodies in the temporary morgue. They include 34 of the 77 recruits killed in the crash and two of the three airplane crewmen.

Dr. H. H. Karnitschnig, acting chief medical examiner, said Army teams have been gathering additional information from the families of the Army recruits to aid in further identification.

The Imperial Airlines Constellation carrying the recruits to training at Ft. Jackson, S.C., crashed at the edge of Richmond's Byrd Airport Wednesday night. The airplane, with two engines dead and a third faltering, was attempting an emergency landing.

Seconds before the crash the pilot radioed that his third engine was going out and that he could not get his landing gear down.

Korean Opens Talks With Kennedy

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. Gen. Chung Hae Park, leader of the military junta that seized power in South Korea, opens his talks with President Kennedy today with a request for strong U.S. economic support and additional military aid.

U.S. officials said Kennedy will pledge American aid in principle and approve a plan to modernize South Korea's 600,000-man armed forces.

The groundwork for Park's meeting with Kennedy will be laid when Park confers with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Foster Hamilton, U.S. aid administrator.

The general then meets Kennedy for the first time at a small White House lunch. Afterward, the two will talk alone through an interpreter in the President's office.

Park came to prominence last May when he and a group of fellow officers overthrew the elected government.

At first, the United States was cool to the revolutionary junta but gradually gave it increasing support as the junta attacked graft and corruption in government and undertook a series of social reforms.

Park was met late Monday with a red carpet welcome, complete with a 19-gun salute and full military honors at National Airport.

In welcoming him, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said: "In the next two days President Kennedy and members of his administration will discuss with you how we in America can assist in the fulfillment of plans for the greater well-being and prosperity of the Korean people."

Park replied: "This visit affords us an unparalleled opportunity to discuss our mutual problems. We shall repay the United States and other free world allies for their support and assistance by reconstructing our nation. Doing this will enable us to fulfill our responsibilities more effectively as a member of the free world."

ABC of Fallout —

The Types of Fallout

STRATOSPHERIC FALLOUT
Can take years to fall to earth through interaction of air currents. If high enough, the fallout could spread over the entire world.

TROPOSPHERIC FALLOUT
Radioactive particles in this region where weather is formed fall in matter of weeks, brought down mostly along with rain and snow.

LOCAL FALLOUT
Formed of matter scooped up by bomb's fireball; is most dangerous type, but extends only a few hundred miles, settles within hours.

The lower a blast occurs, the more material it scoops up from the earth and drops as local and tropospheric fallout. Higher and more powerful bombs send more particles into the stratosphere, where they linger, lose much potency.

Everyone takes for granted the almost unbelievable blast and heat unleashed by a nuclear bomb. What worries the world today are the uncertain — thus, more terrifying — effects of a nuclear bomb's by-products: radio-active particles, or fallout. Ordinary people have reason to be confused, for even scientists dispute over the dangers of fallout and on the value of shelters. Charts above illustrate how fallout is formed, what happens to it and list some of its characteristics. As for its effects on the human race, our grandchildren will perhaps answer that question. Little fallout from the current Russian tests has yet settled to earth; the great bulk

1. FISSION—Neutrons emitted by uranium-235 split other U-235 atoms (ordinary A-bomb). Reaction produces free neutrons and great heat.

2. FUSION—The heat fuses two types of hydrogen, creating the H-bomb explosion with blast, heat and more high-speed neutrons.

3. FISSION—Neutrons strike casing made of uranium-238, splitting it into radioactive units.

Neutrons Protons

"Dirtiness" of a hydrogen bomb is caused by its uranium trigger and outer casing (diagram, left). • Long-lasting fallout threat is contamination of food for men and animals.

The Most Dangerous Fallout Particles

Most serious of fallout products, has half-life of about 27 years (that is, in 27 years it has lost half its radioactivity). Is easily absorbed into bones of children; can cause bone cancer or leukemia.

STRONTIUM-90

Similar half-life to strontium-90, it lodges in muscles and tissues of body; threatens genetic harm.

CESIUM-137

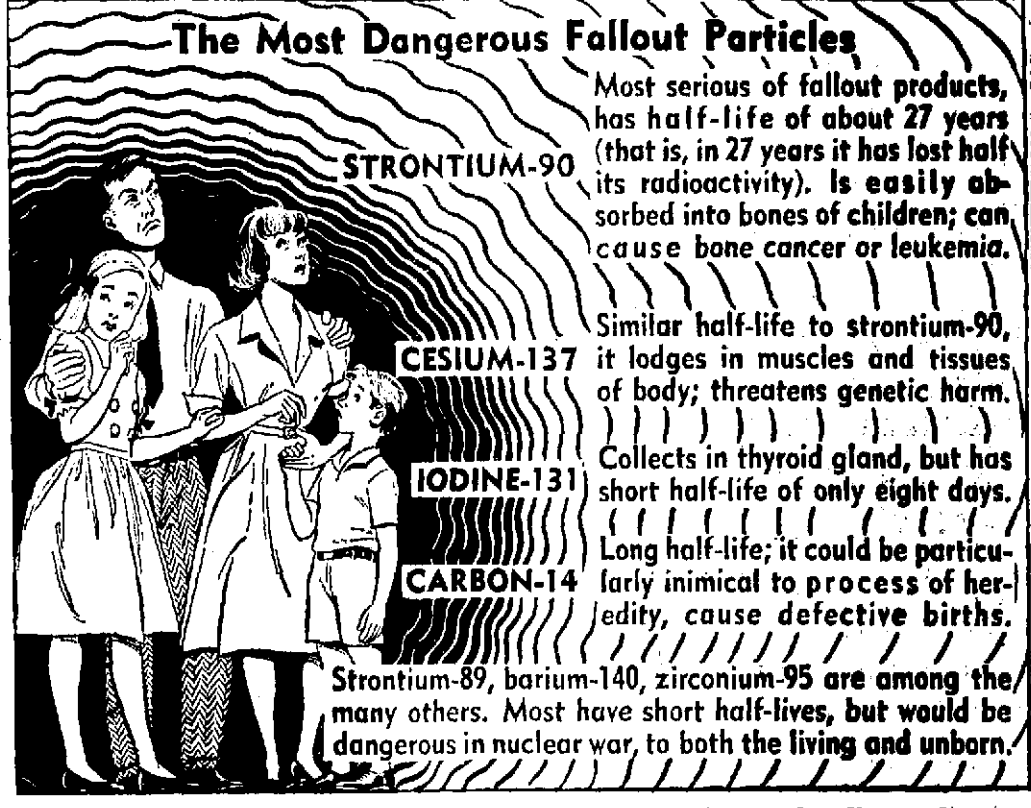

Collects in thyroid gland, but has short half-life of only eight days.

IODINE-131

Long half-life; it could be particularly inimical to process of heredity, cause defective births.

CARBON-14

Strontium-89, barium-140, zirconium-95 are among the many others. Most have short half-lives, but would be dangerous in nuclear war, to both the living and unborn.

In all, some 200 different radioactive isotopes (radioactive forms of ordinary elements) are created by a hydrogen bomb blast. Fortunately, most decay rapidly. Those which don't, however, pose a serious danger to mankind. Authorities are not agreed just where impermissible levels begin. Some argue any amount of radioactivity is potentially dangerous.

of it will appear with next spring's rains. But local fallout from Russia's current series of tests undoubtedly has affected the U. S. S. R. The U. S. Weather Bureau says that anyone living within 100 miles downwind of the 50 megaton-plus superbomb would have received 100 reentgens (a measure of radiation; 400 is fatal to everyone), which would have caused "mild sickness." The Atomic Energy Commission estimates that the Soviets' big bomb was detonated at about 12,000 feet and had a fireball nearly five miles in diameter.

2 Men Hold the Fate of Legislation

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two men other than the speaker and majority leader may decide the fate of major legislation in the House in the session starting Jan. 10.

They are Howard W. Smith, Virginia Democrat who heads the Rules Committee, and Charles A. Halleck, Indiana Republican who leads the minority.

For years Smith and Halleck have teamed up to head a conservative coalition that at times has dominated the House despite its nominal control by Democrats.

The Northern Republican-Southern Democrat coalition's chief stumbling block in the past has been Sam Rayburn, who was able on occasion to win over enough Southerners to save coalition-opposed legislation. Rayburn's success was attributed primarily to his personal popularity with his Southern colleagues.

The 79-year-old speaker is ill with cancer in a Bonham, Tex., hospital and not even his most optimistic friends expect him to return to Washington.

Claims $15,000 Cattle Tax Loss

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Charles E. Oates, a Texarkana dentist, testified in U.S. Tax Court today that he lost $15,000 in a cattle venture over a period of years.

The testimony was to support Oates' case in a battle against a $1,546 tax deficiency assessed against him by the Internal Revenue Service.

Judge William H. Fay is presiding over the three-day Tax Court session.

The Kennedy legislative program is concerned. They see serious trouble ahead for legislation dealing with tariffs, school aid, medical care for the aged, foreign aid and any program involving heavy expenditures of public money.

Rayburn Rallies in Cancer Fight

BONHAM, Tex. (AP) — Sam Rayburn is fighting a valiant battle against cancer and the hours or days his doctors gave him to live are stretching on.

Last Saturday, Dr. Joe A. Risser said it would be only a matter of hours or days for the 79-year-old speaker of the house. Then Rayburn was a bit better Sunday.

Monday he was a little worse.

So it goes. He improves somewhat, then slips. The net is a loss that shows up in such terms as "less alertness," and "difficulty in breathing."

For days every medical bulletin has called Rayburn's condition critical.

Her Past Prelude to Her Present

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am a desperate mother badly in need of help. Three times, with provocation, I hit my two little girls and hurt them badly. Some day I fear I may kill them even though loving them as my own life.

Periodically, these uncontrollable fits of anger overtake me. From a normal, well-adjusted human being I suddenly change into a wild woman bearing no resemblance to the real me. After such fits of rage I want to cut off my arms. I am so wretched, but while these spells last they are terrifying.

At these times, I feel that my dead father has taken possession of me. He was insanely cruel, beating my brother and me without provocation. Afraid for my life I ran away at 16, was brought back and given treatment at a child guidance clinic.

Eventually I married a man who truly loves me and I him. We adore our children and, save for my unpredictable rages, our home life is extremely happy. How can I cast out the devil that is my father in me? Psychiatric treatment is impossible on our budget. —Miserable Child - Beater, Spanaway, Wash.

Dear Miserable: At least you recognize the danger of these ungovernable rages. That is the first step to recovery. They are a symptom not a cause. While your trouble may be psychiatric, it may also be physical. Many doctors believe that dietary deficiencies or glandular disturbances cause conditions such as yours.

Start out by seeing your family doctor and let him decide what treatments should be tried. If you are unable to afford the treatments from private specialists, he can direct you to clinics and other places where you can get treatment within your means.

Dear Helen: I am 16 and have been going steady a year and a

to help the Leopoldville government's army end Katanga's 16-month-old defiance of the central government.

Western sources said the United States and Britain feel Katanga must be brought back into the fold by peaceful means only.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia cabled U.N. headquarters Nov. 1 that the council must act decisively "to ensure the integration of Katanga into the Congolese nation." Two days later Ethiopia, Sudan and Nigeria asked for a council meeting to consider the situation "caused by the lawless acts of mercenaries" officering the Katanga army and air force.

Western sources said the United States and Britain had been talking with other delegations about a council resolution that would:

1. Affirm the territorial unity of the Congo, including Katanga.
2. Welcome the establishment last Aug. 2 of Premier Cyrille Adoula's central coalition government.
3. Express hope for an end to Katanga's secession by negotiation.
4. Call again for the ouster of foreign mercenaries from Katanga.
5. Declare that no arms should go to the Congo except through the United Nations.
6. Make some reference to acting Secretary-General U Thant that would have the effect of transferring to the Congo mandates given the late Dag Hammarskjöld.

Labor Can Halt Reds, Says Pope

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A high Vatican official said here Saturday that Communist inroads can be stopped by a strong labor movement led by the people.

Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States, told a news conference that Utopian promises of a better life have helped the Communist cause.

This, he said, could be offset by a labor movement led by people interested in the working class.

The archbishop said some Catholics vote for the Communist Party because it helps them more than other parties.

"But still, Catholics go to church," he said.

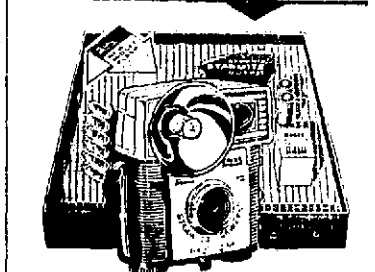

Write for "Teen-Age Code."

Dear Helen: I'm a teen-ager who would like to keep the boy with whom I go interested and yet not get into trouble. What can we do around the house evenings? In other words, I don't want to neck all night long like the boys. Got any ideas? —Wholesome

Dear Wholesome: Share your boy friend's hobbies. If you don't know what they are, find out. Flatter him by acquiring the same hobby. Maybe it's rock 'n' roll records. If so, collect some which he has not. Try them out when he comes over. Exchange with him. The same holds for stamps, autographs, tropical fish or what have you. If he plays some musical instrument, learn to accompany him. In other words, make his interests yours.

Wife Pleads Innocent in Death Mate

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will propose this week that the 20 nations of the Atlantic Community increase their combined economic output 50 per cent by 1970, U. S. officials said today.

George W. Ball, U.S. undersecretary of state for economic affairs, will present the proposal at the conference of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris Thursday and Friday.

The organization has three declared aims: to work in the interest of achieving the highest possible economic growth, to assist less-developed areas of the world with capital investments, and to expand world trade.

The United States believes, officials said, that with the economic recovery of Western Europe completed and with the free convertibility of Western European currencies generally achieved, it is time to set a new goal. It would raise the present combined gross national output of the 20-nation body from about $900 billion a year to $1.35 trillion within nine years.

The annual gross national product of the United States would increase from $520 billion in 1961 to $780 billion by 1970 if the goal is reached.

The gross national product is a measure of a country's output of goods and services.

A top-ranking diplomat said adoption of the U.S. proposal—plus what he called necessary changes in domestic economic policies—would show that Western nations recognize their economy must grow if it is to survive.

Dead Still Not Known in Air Crash

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Medical authorities hope to have new evidence today that will help to complete identification of the 77 victims of the crash of a flaming airliner carrying Army recruits.

Doctors at the Medical College of Virginia so far have identified 36 bodies in the temporary morgue. They include 34 of the 74 recruits killed in the crash and two of the three airplane crewmen.

Dr. H. H. Karnitschnig, acting chief medical examiner, said Army teams have been gathering additional information from the families of the Army recruits to aid in further identification. The Imperial Airlines Constellation carrying the recruits to training at Ft. Jackson, S.C., crashed at the edge of Richmond's Byrd Airport Wednesday night. The airplane, with two engines dead and a third faltering, was attempting an emergency landing. Seconds before the crash the pilot radioed that his third engine was going out and that he could not get his landing gear down.

FREE ENTERPRISE SATELLITE—The first space satellite to be built and paid for by private American industries will be launched in the spring of 1962. It will be the forerunner of a world-wide system of about 50 communications satellites. Left, Bell Telephone Laboratories technicians prepare a development model of the 34-inch sphere. Broadcasting antennas circle it in two belts. Solar cells cover the rest of its surface. When the space bird goes into orbit, a super-sensitive antenna, right, set on a hill at Andover, Me., will begin sending and receiving signals. The satellite will relay messages to similar stations in England and France. The Maine stations, shaped like a giant ear trumpet, will be 177 feet long and 94 feet high. It will be protected by a 13-story dome. National Aeronautics and Space Administration will launch the first experimental satellite for a fee of about $5 million, which will be paid by American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

SMALLER AND SMALLER—"Miniaturization" is a word used today to cover the task of reproducing bulky objects in small form. In rockets and other modern devices it is vital. The photo of Marvin Marcus at Bulova Labs, Woodside, N.Y., provides a good example of this new skill. Object in front is original circuit model (called a "breadboard") of an interval timer for missiles. He holds the same device in its final miniaturized form.

Captain Puts Rangers in Over Hawks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Andy Bathgate, captain and chief gunner of the surprising New York Rangers had been in something of a scoring slump. So he started thinking about golf.

The result was the 200th goal of his National Hockey League career, one which broke the backs of the Chicago Black Hawks and brought the Rangers a 4-1 victory Sunday night, and put him in front in the league scoring race.

"I'd been in a slump," the 29-year-old forward explained after notching his milestone against Glenn Hall, "and I started thinking about it."

"I realized I was taking my left hand off the stick on the follow-through of the shot. The result was just like in golf—it slices to the right. So against Chicago I kept the left hand where it belongs."

The New York victory, plus Boston's 4-3 verdict over Toronto and Terry Sawchuk's 3-0 shutout of Montreal for Detroit, pulled the Rangers into second place.

Hawks and Bruins lost to the Rangers. They now lead Toronto by one point and are just two back of the leading Canadiens.

Texas Game Away From Cotton Bowl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Texas, which has established itself as at least four touchdowns better than anybody else in the Southwest Conference, can clinch a trip to the Cotton Bowl this week.

All the Longhorns have to do is beat a Texas Christian team that lost by two touchdowns to Baylor—the outfit Texas whipped 33-7 Saturday.

Texas and Texas Christian get together at Austin next Saturday and Cotton Bowl officials will be standing by to issue a formal invitation.

Texas has won eight straight games and averaged 33 points per contest. Included are five Southwest Conference victories and since they have only two games to go, the Longhorns can guarantee themselves of no worse than a tie for the title by winning one of them.

In that event Arkansas would be the party of the other part. If Arkansas wins its two remaining games. Since Texas beat Arkansas in regular season play it would get the Cotton Bowl host spot.

However, there is little doubt that Texas, the nation's No. 1 team, won't win both of its remaining games and become the first undefeated, untied team in the Southwest Conference in 22 years.

Arkansas put itself in position to finish second Saturday with a solid 10-0 victory over Rice. The Razorbacks are 4-1, with Southern Methodist, whom they play at Dallas Saturday and Texas Tech still on the schedule.

Texas A&M, Texas' foe in the Longhorns' final game, is on Thanksgiving Day—beat Southern Methodist 25-12 and led to an effigy of Bill Meek, the Southern Methodist coach, being hanged up in Dallas, SMU has a season record of 2-5.

The league was back in the intersectional wars last week and its representatives split even. Texas Tech beat Boston College 14-6 while Texas Christian took a 28-7 lacing from UCLA. It left the league's season record at 13-4-1 against outside opposition.

The last intersectional game of the year is scheduled at Waco Saturday when Baylor hosts the Air Force Academy.

Campbell Is Winner at Beaumont

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Joe Campbell, not bothered by the greens of the sand traps that stalled other pros, shot a five-under-par 66 to win the $20,000 Beaumont Invitational Golf Tournament Sunday. His 277 for 72 holes gave him first money by a stroke.

The cigar-chewing Campbell picked up his check for $2,000, kissed his wife and announced, "We're going to Las Vegas, honey, just like I promised."

While Campbell heads west, the winter golf tour headed east to Lafayette, La., and the annual Cajon Open.

The victory was the only first-place prize Campbell, a former Purdue University basketball player, has won since joining the pro tour three years ago.

His only other claim to major golf fame was the $50,000 hole-in-one he fired at Desert Springs, Calif., last year.

Shot Chattanooga, Tenn., golfer the short rounds of 72-71-68-66-277. One stroke behind was Bert Weaver of Beaumont, who matched Campbell's five-under-par final round and finished with a 278.

Gordon Jones of Orlando, Fla., took third with a 279 and tied with 280 were Jay Hebert of Miami, Ed Merrins of Cedarhurst, N.Y., and Jack Cupit of Longview, Tex.

Oscar Robertson and Jack Twyman each scored 31 points to lead the Royals' attack.

The game was close until well into the third quarter. The lead changed hands 10 times before the Royals went ahead by one point at the end of the first quarter.

Bob Cousy triggered a first quarter outbreak that netted 15 points for the Celtics and made their task easy. Bill Russell led the victors with 28 points. Archie Dues was high man for the Packers with 16 points. The Packers are 4-4 in the Western Division with a 2-6 record.

forecast for ENERGY

America's rapidly growing population will consume twice as much energy by 1980

Glance at the second hand of your watch. Each seventh second a baby is born in the United States. Four million a year. We'll have half a million more citizens by 1980. And, our need for energy will grow faster than our population. By 1980 the nation will need twice the energy being consumed today.

Where will it come from? Most of it from present energy sources, some from new ones. Whatever the source, a large share of energy in its most efficient and usable forms will be transported via pipelines. Texas Eastern's natural gas pipelines, stretching from the Mexican border to the Atlantic Seaboard, have capacity to fuel thousands of factories and heat millions of homes. Our Little Big Inch pipeline system, largest of its kind, delivers liquid petroleum products from Gulf Coast refineries to Midwest markets. Looking to the future, Texas Eastern is growing and diversifying today to meet tomorrow's energy needs.

Kennedy Is Himself in News Parley

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undramatic, unsentimental and, very often, uncolorful. These are the three most consistent characteristics of President Kennedy's performance in 18 news conferences.

In other words, he operates in a low key, very often understating rather than overstating.

Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower sometimes burst into anger, sometimes rocked the house with laughter. Kennedy doesn't get angry and his humor is generally sly or subtle.

Is this deliberate policy—a thought-out technique—or is it just Kennedy? It's so consistent it's probably just Kennedy himself.

He gave an early insight into all this—although it wasn't realized at the time—at his very first presidential news conference, six days after becoming chief executive last January.

He started it by saying he had several announcements. The first was a statement about the resumption of nuclear test ban talks with the Russians at Geneva. Then he said this country would step up its family relief to the Congo.

He reserved for last the announcement—and it made headlines later—that the Russians had released two American fliers whose RB47 bomber had been shot down by the Russians six months before.

Wednesday he had a chance to make some political hay, with broad swipes at the Republicans, when asked for comment on some Democratic victories in Tuesday's elections. He played this low-key, too, by not magnifying their importance.

He has done the same in the most critical foreign problems when, with very few exceptions, he has been nonbelligerent even though his opposite number, Premier Khrushchev, was tearing up the yard with threats and thunderings.

All this raises two questions: 1. What will be the long-range effect on the American people's attitude to a President who plays it cool and doesn't make their pulse beat faster once in a while except for some of the literary touches he puts into his speeches? 2. What will be the effect overseas, among Allies and in the Communist world which, specifically in the case of Khrushchev, has been needing him and giving him abundant provocation for anger?

As for question No. 1: He's been doing all right so far from a personal standpoint. He got himself elected President and as of now he stands extremely high in the popularity polls. Whether this lasts is something else.

As for question No. 2: It should be easy for people overseas, particularly the Communist world, to look upon his restraint in the Khrushchev's threats and bombast as a mark of weakness or timidity.

Even if the nature of the man himself were not the reason, it would be easy to understand why Kennedy has so quietly handled the Berlin crisis created by Khrushchev: The Allies themselves have not agreed on what to do.

Nevertheless, Kennedy's reticence with Khrushchev may have borne good fruit.

Khrushchev gives the impression of a man who is anxious to cover up some inner uncertainty by over-aggressiveness. At the rate he was going it would have been easy for him to talk himself into a war.

If Kennedy had tried to outdo Khrushchev in a shouting match, the Russians might have been rendered so self-conscious that, feeling challenged to make good on his threats, he'd think he had to.

Kennedy forced no such challenge on him. Now Khrushchev is making milder sounds. A reasonable settlement may now be possible but would have been rendered impossible if Kennedy had tried to out-Khrushchev Khrushchev.

Kennedy, instead of slamming the door on reason, left it open. Whether Khrushchev walks in—or whether he thinks Kennedy's reticence is timidity and therefore something to be used and abused—remains for the future.

But so does any valid and final appraisal of whether Kennedy's sometimes uncolorful handling of the presidency is better or worse than a more vibrant method.

The deglaciation of North America involved the melting of 6,700,000 square miles of ice, two miles thick in the center.

Favor Adios in Harness Racing Best

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Henry T. Adios drew post position No. 3 today and was installed a 5-2 favorite for harness racing's richest event, the $145,378 Messenger Stakes Friday night at Roosevelt Raceway.

The colt will compete against eight other 3-year-olds in the rich 1-mile feature, with Stanley Dancer, his driver, Henry T. Adios, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Derrico of Pelham Manor, N.Y., has won 15 times and has finished in the money 25 times in 27 starts this year.

Current second choice for the Messenger at 7-2 is Adios Don, to be driven by Bob Camper, who will be the only horse in the second row—post position No. 9 along the rail.

The only filly in the field, Way Wave, and Lang Hanover are rated at 4-1.

Adiosand, who drew the pole position, and Tarport Jimmy are the Del Miller Stable entry and rated at 8-1.

Hogan Hanover is 10-1 and Yankee Express is 12-1. The long shot of the nine probable starters is High Test at 15-1.

The Messenger, two turns around Roosevelt's half-mile oval, will be worth $72,988 to the winner.

No. 1 Defense Back Belongs to Giants

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Tommy McDonald, the fleet flanker back of the Philadelphia Eagles, rates Erich Barnes of the New York Giants the best defensive back he has met this year.

The figures back up McDonald. With the 26-year-old former Purdue star shadowing him at every move, McDonald caught only three passes for 26 yards against the Giants in their National Football League game Sunday, won by New York 38-21. In eight previous games, he caught 40 for 628 yards, an average of 15.6 yards.

"The way the Giants played against us they would have beaten any team in the country," McDonald said at the New York Football Writers luncheon. "This Giant club is five times better than last year's team. More offensive punch and that same old defense."

"Barnes did a job on me but I dropped four passes. It was my fault. I have no excuses. There is nobody to blame but myself. This time we are going home with our head between our legs. But we play them again (Dec. 10) in Philadelphia."

The battered Giants were gathering themselves for another big effort Sunday against a Pittsburgh team that always rises to the heights against New York.

Word from the hospital ward was that defensive backs Dick Nolan and Billy Stits, both out of action due to dislocated shoulders, will be lost for two or three weeks. Jack Stroud, a bulwark on

The station's scientific leader, boarded chief meteorologist Ben W. Harlin, said the lowest temperature of the winter was 102 below zero, on Aug. 12. The record is minus 110 degrees, recorded on Sept. 13, 1959.

The chief recreational project during the winter was the building of the "Bamboo Room" — a cozy little place with walls surfaced with bamboo rods ordinarily used for markers on the snow.

Beer is available in this southernmost bar in the world.

Here, and in the galley-mess hall, the team at the polar station celebrated "Christmas" on June 21, and "Sunrise Day" on Sept. 23.

The latter is the date on which the sun officially rises again after the months-long winter night although a kind of eerie twilight prevails for several weeks before.

Although the two tunnelled entrances to the buried camp were blocked by snow during the winter, meteorologists several times a day squeezed through escape hatches to check on instruments scattered over several acres.

Rope lines guided them back to camp when the winds whipped the snow.

Weather balloons were launched to heights of 35,000 feet twice a day. Geophysicists regularly traversed a narrow 1,000-foot-long tunnel to check on geomagnetic instruments which have to be kept isolated from iron and other metals.

Dr. Philip K. Swartz of Napa, Calif., a physician, is presently in charge of the camp although his relief, Dr. Malcolm Lentz of York, Pa., is among the new arrivals.

'All in Love' Newest New York Hit

By WILLIAM GLOVER Associated Press Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — A tricky theatrical feat is smartly achieved by a creative young team with "All in Love," an unexpected musical bonum.

Trying to improve upon a classic is a popular stage pastime that only rarely succeeds. But this is just what brilliantly occurs in the taut, frothy musical that arrived without advance fanfare over the weekend at the tiny Martinique Theatre.

Composer Jacques Urbont, 30, and writer Bruce Geller, 31, have based the show upon that witty oldtimer familiar to every schoolboy, "The Rivals." The happy results derive from a rare mixture of taste, inventive artistry and discretion.

All the wonderfully funny characters and situations which Richard Brinsley Sheridan packed into the 266-year-old original are dealt with in "All in Love." Alterations that have been made heighten the jest.

David Atkinson (Jack Absolute), Dan de Lasse (Bob Acres) and Christina Gillespie (wily maid Lucy) are particular standouts in the company directed by Tom Breunon with mockingly stylized grace.

Urbont, who has written music mostly for night clubs, supplies a score with several songs of more tunefulness than Broadway has turned up so far this season. Geller, a TV-film writer, provides some tripping Gilbertian lyrics and some properly sentimental odes.

Editor's Note: Washburn used two Contax cameras, one loaded with Tri-X for the black-and-white pictures which were published; the other loaded with Hi-Speed Ektachrome B for color-shooting under artificial light. Five out of the 10 Tri-X shots were good; but the Editor batted 100% on the color pictures — 10 out of 10.

The Ice Cajones, wherever they show, are lighted by spots rather than floods, making it impossible to measure the light with a meter. An educated guess led Washburn to shoot Tri-X at 1/250th of a second at F2.8, and results would have been better had he closed down to F5.6, quivering the exposure.

But the color exposure, 1/250th of a second at F1.5 for all 40 shots, was right on the money. Ordinary cameras with an F4.5 lens or better can shoot the Ice Cajones in black and white, but color work requires at least F2 to "stop" action.

120 Balls for Charity in N. Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — About 120 charity balls of social importance have been scheduled in New York City for the 1961-62 social season. This is triple the number five years ago.

Most of the affairs raise money for charities that seek to prevent, cure or ease physical and mental ailments.

"She left some shoes in my closet," said Hilary. "I took hers out and put mine in."

By URSULA CURTISS

THE STORY: Margaret Russell had been engaged as engaged to Philip Byrne when he met her sister, Cornelia, and married her. When the Byrnes set out on a motor trip for Cornelia's health, Margaret arrived to care for their rented home and to look out for eighty-year-old Hilary Reversion, daughter of friends who had gone to Mexico to reconcile after marital difficulties.

Chapter II

Margaret was washing the breakfast dishes, and wondering absently how Hilary had managed to distribute so much yolk out of one poached egg, when Hilary's preoccupied voice said from somewhere, "What does pregnant say?"

Margaret dropped a fork as though it had burned her. "Hilary, come here, will you?"

Hilary came with a promptness that betrayed her; she never, with her wits about her, obeyed any order on time. She carried what was obviously a letter, and Margaret seized it at once with a mixture of speed and severity.

"Where did you get this?"

"In a drawer."

"What drawer?"

"In the pantry. I was looking for shoeboxes," said Hilary virtuously.

"You couldn't expect to find shoeboxes in a pantry drawer," said Margaret sternly, "and even if you did they'd be Mrs. Foale's shoeboxes. Hilary, you must not pry." She tried to pin Hilary's disconcerting yellowish eyes, but they were downcast in the squirrel face—plump cheeks, nubbin of chin. "Do you know what prying means?"

Hilary's lashes stayed down. "Looking where I shouldn't."

Margaret tried not to think that this glib definition indicated a long history of prying. "Well, then, you know better. Put it back right away," her own gaze flicked to Mrs. Foale's shoes somewhere tempted down to the lines of ev-er and then lifted again "and if you need anything like shoeboxes, remind me when I go out. Have you made your bed?"

In two days she had become well acquainted with Hilary. Teachers at the progressive school had probably discussed her in her hearing, as had friends of the Revertons. Hilary was complacent about being a problem, as well she might be. Cornelia and Philip had knuckled under to it; Lena accepted it as philosophical; as bad weather. Margaret was unable to do either, and as a result she and Hilary treated each other like hostile Indians.

Pregnant, thought Margaret vaguely, going back to the dishes. Well, Mrs. Foale, a thin, fadedly pretty woman in her sixties, to judge by the photograph in the hall, undoubtedly corresponded with younger relatives and friends.

At 11:30 Hilary brought in the mail.

Margaret sorted it because Cornelia had asked her to. Philip's job as representative for a chemical concern on the Coast required so much traveling that he was, very discreetly, putting out other lines. If a letter came from Phalanx, Inc., she was to open it against their expected call. There was no letter from Phalanx, Inc., but she wondered un-derstandably about that as she walked back to the house alone half an hour later Hilary could not really indulge through envelopes, find movies that abhorrent, what, handwritten and typed; two for Cornelia, one for Philip, bank statements for each of them, and a postcard to Mrs. Hadley Foale.

No one wrote intimacies on postcards, and Margaret read it almost without thinking. The tiny cramped writing said, "Dear Hilary, So thrilled and envious at your wire. Aren't you the lucky one? Do wish you'd planned to embark from N. Y. so we could have seen you. Have a wonderful trip and keep us posted. Love, Grace."

"Is that yours?" asked Hilary, craning upward, and Margaret said crisply, "No. You're standing on my foot, Hilary."

"I have very big feet for my age," said Hilary complacently. "As big as Mrs. Foale's."

Perhaps because of the solemnity with which Margaret invoked the name, Hilary had come to say it with a kind of round owliness. In this intonation, Mrs. Foale came a vengeful two-headed deity, dangerous to trespass on in any way. "What," demanded Margaret astoundedly, "do you know about Mrs. Foale's feet?"

"She left some shoes in the shoebox in my closet. I thought you didn't want me to leave my shoes lying all over the room," said Hilary righteously, "so I took hers out and put mine in."

"Oh, you can't do that." This would, with Hilary, be the enter- ing wedge; she had a horrified vi- sion of the house being briskly rearranged, some objects broken, others irretrievably lost—and al- disconcerting yellowish eyes, but ways with Hilary's air of prim reproach.

Margaret opened the closet door, and it was as she had feared: a pile of shoes had been tumbled rudely into a corner, while the ragged sneakers, side by side, reigned over the shoebag. Hilary would undoubtedly be seized by the urge to clean out the closet, presently, and hurl right away, her own gaze flicked to Mrs. Foale's shoes somewhere else, and Cornelia would have ev-er and then lifted again "and if you need anything like shoeboxes, remind me when I go out. Have you made your bed?"

In two days she had become well acquainted with Hilary. Teachers at the progressive school had probably discussed her in her hearing, as had friends of the Revertons. Hilary was complacent about being a problem, as well she might be. Cornelia and Philip had knuckled under to it; Lena accepted it as philosophical; as bad weather. Margaret was unable to do either, and as a result she and Hilary treated each other like hostile Indians.

Pregnant, thought Margaret vaguely, going back to the dishes. Well, Mrs. Foale, a thin, fadedly pretty woman in her sixties, to judge by the photograph in the hall, undoubtedly corresponded with younger relatives and friends.

At 11:30 Hilary brought in the mail.

Margaret sorted it because Cornelia had asked her to. Philip's job as representative for a chemical concern on the Coast required so much traveling that he was, very discreetly, putting out other lines. If a letter came from Phalanx, Inc., she was to open it against their expected call. There was no letter from Phalanx, Inc., but she wondered un-derstandably about that as she walked back to the house alone half an hour later Hilary could not really indulge through envelopes, find movies that abhorrent, what,

(then, had she been doing, or planning to do, that she hated being forced to leave?)

There was still time to wash her hair and get it reasonably dry before she went to collect Hilary. At Cornelia's insistence, because there was a telephone extension and a bath of her own, Margaret had moved into the big high-win- dowed double bedroom. She washed her hair, towelled it, and had begun to comb it dark and wet against her head when the doorbell rang.

It seemed to peal through the quiet house, freezing the comb in mid-air, stopping Margaret's breath and pale scrubbed reflec- tion in the mirror. It was the kind of mischance that was always overtaking her, and certainly not- ing to make her heart beat faster about. Let it ring, she couldn't very well go to the door like this. Unless it did ring again, winces- ingly loud and imperative—it was a telegram from Cornelia and Phil- ipp, or from Hilary's parents . . .

One small high dimly-curtained window faced on the porch. Mar- garet approached it with caution, stood on tiptoe, and looked out at a man, dark head turned away from her as he absorbed the sil- ence of the house.

Not a telegram, and even the most persistent salesman would give up after three unavailing rings—but while she watched he opened the screen door gently and put a hand on the doorknob, try- ing it with care and intentness.

And, thought Margaret over a great pulse of shock, in her anxi- ety to see what Hilary had been up to, she hadn't locked the front door behind her when she came in, and it was open.

MOSCOW (AP) — Former For- eign Minister V. M. Molotov dis- appeared into the secret depths of Soviet society Sunday as if he had been dropped into a well.

Gray and aged, he came from Vienna by train with his gray and aging wife, to face a purge by which the Communist party hopes to wipe out a little more of the memory and a few more of the sins of the Stalin regime.

He came clearly without re- straint. Not a public official came to greet him at the train. If he had chosen freedom, he could have remained abroad.

A few plainclothes policemen showed up at the station, but they kept well back of the crowd of Western correspondents who came to question Molotov. The questions were met by the same "nyet" with which he had beaten back approaches to East-West agreements after World War II.

"Let's change the subject," said Stalin's longtime associate when asked about his reported expul- sion from the party and Premier Khrushchev's denunciation of him at the recent Soviet Communist party congress.

"We had a fine trip," said his wife, Paulina. "Many of the pas- sengers came to our compartment to say 'goodbye and good luck.'"

Except for the foreign news- men, only the couple's daughter, Svetlana, and her husband were on hand to greet them. Molotov, now 71, showed no outward con- cern at the question mark hang- ing over his future. Seemingly relaxed, he talked with his daugh- ter and son-in-law about their children.

Sex Dragnet Is Put Out by New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy has deployed more than 600 ad- ditional policemen and policewomen into high crime areas of the city during the 4 p.m. to midnight shift when crime is at its peak.

Two score policewomen, in civil- ian clothes and carrying guns, are doing foot patrol as decoys in sec- tions where sex crimes have been increasing.

indicated to Western correspond- ents that he might have something to say about the charges made against him in the party congress that he had participated in ma- jor purges of party officials under Stalin.

Reports came through unofficial channels that expulsion from the party had already been voted by Molotov's party cell. The same re- ports said he had appealed to the supreme party court, the Con- trol Commission.

Soviet press officials, when all mercenaries and irregular for- asked about Molotov, pretended eight military advisers arrested by not to know that he had returned U.N. forces be handed over to Congolese courts for trial.

No Squeak in This Chair for JFK

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — A squeakless rocking chair and a tradition-laden ceremony will wel- come President Kennedy to Seat- tle Thursday.

Shortly before Kennedy address- es the academic centennial con- vocation of the University of Washington a century-old bell will toll 10 times, once for each decade of the school's history.

Thus will Washington, the oldest state-supported institution of high- er learning on the Pacific Coast, observe its 100th anniversary.

The White House has announced that Kennedy's speech will be de- voted to foreign policy. About 11,000 persons, mostly faculty and students, are expected to jam Ed- mundson Athletic Pavilion for the convocation.

Thursday night, Kennedy will speak at a $100-a-plate dinner marking the 25th anniversary in Congress of Sen. Warren G. Mag- uson, D-Wash. Among the diners will be Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Kennedy will spend the night in the Olympic Hotel. When he gets there he'll find a squeakless rock- er, carted from Spokane.
